Milwaukee, WI— The Lynde and Harry Bradley Foundation announced today one of four 2015 Bradley Prizes will be presented to General John “Jack” Keane, U.S. Army, Retired.

The Bradley Prize will be awarded to General Keane at a ceremony to be held at the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts in Washington, D.C. on Wednesday, June 3. Each award carries a stipend of $250,000.

A four-star general, General Keane completed 37 years of service, culminating with his appointment as Acting Chief of Staff and Vice Chief of Staff of the U.S. Army. The selection was based on nominations provided by more than 200 prominent individuals across the country and chosen by the Bradley Prizes Selection Committee.

“Through the Bradley Prizes, we recognize individuals like General Keane whose accomplishments strengthen American institutions, with the hope that others will strive for excellence in their respective fields,” said Mr. Grebe.

Founded in 1985, The Lynde and Harry Bradley Foundation is devoted to strengthening American democratic capitalism and the institutions, principles and values that sustain and nurture it. Its programs support limited, competent government; a dynamic marketplace for economic, intellectual and cultural activity; and a vigorous defense, at home and abroad, of American ideas and institutions. Recognizing that responsible self-government depends on enlightened citizens and informed public opinion, the Foundation supports scholarly studies and academic achievement.
